What are some important qualities of a good school teacher?

First of all, I consider that a good school teacher must have a good knowledge of his subject or he wouldn't be able to teach his students properly. You just can't get any relevant information from a person, who knows nothing about the subject he teaches.

The second quality is personality. A tutor has to be kind, calm and patient, because students could ask questions for a million times if they don't understand something in teacher's words and it can really make some of teacher very angry. And if the tutor is impatient, he would have a bad reputation and even get fined, so you won't study the subject.

And the third is creativeness. For example, my history teacher. She's a good person but, most of all, she's really creative tutor. She makes interesting historical games for each lesson and prepares funny presentations. She is the main reason why I like history. So, the way your tutor teaches you, his own type of explanation, it just makes you interested in the subject. That's the key of interesting studying at school. Well, I think the combination of these qualities is an example of a good school teacher.
