Writing

What I hope to be doing in 10 years' time

Right now I am 14 years old, I live in Khabarovsk and have many goals that I want to achieve. Questions like this one always make me wonder. Ten years later I will be 24 - already an adult, but still clueless about what to do with my life. Every human being is given more than half a century to live. What should I do to not waste these years?

I have already decided that I want to dedicate my life to studying literature. In ten years' time I will probably live and study in Saint-Petersburg. To get into my dream university I ^{will} have to study a lot now, while I am still in school, and get the highest grade at my final exam. I also want to travel a lot, learn about other countries and people who live there, and this ^{will} requires me to work ~~a lot~~ very hard to study abroad.

You will never know what might happen tomorrow, next year or in ten years' time, but you have to make sure that you're doing your best to live the life that you actually want to live and be happy.
