One of the things all the students have been looking forward to during summer vacation is opening of a new canteen in our school. Old one has already been renovated dozens of times, so a decision to build an absolutely new one has been made, exciting the vast majority of students.

When I first entered it, my impression was that I have returned to the old canteen we had before. It occupied exactly the same amount of space as the prior one and I have not noticed any design improvements. From the aesthetic outlook the recently built canteen proved to be as conventional as any other canteen of its kind.

However, it is a common knowledge that High School students do not linger over meals. Thus that is not the interior that matters, but the quality of food respectively. I was fairly pleased with the menu provided, for the dishes served were diverse every day and everyone could certainly pick something to satisfy their personal preferences. Fortunately, the prices have not been risen comparing to the previous year.

As I have already mentioned above, school students are limited in time and cannot spare too much time to treating themselves to a delicious lunch. Due to that, the service has to be extremely efficient and quick. In my view, this is the feature that our newly built canteen is lacking. My proposal is to increase the number of cashier desks and staff at the spot. It would allow to avoid huge queues during break time and to expand the number of contented customers.

Drawing up the conclusion, I can reasonably say that the new canteen had fulfilled my expectations, but there are still some aspects remaining to be promoted.
