Canteen report.

4+4+2+1+2

Recently our school opened a new canteen. This newly renovated area has been somewhat of a surprise to say the least. Everything is drastically different: the design, food, prices and even the overall atmosphere. As a result, there are some aspects that I truly enjoy and others not so much.

First of all, I love the open-spaced design. My friends and I really enjoy walking through the isles, without having to worry about elbowing someone or knocking something over. The tables are no longer crowded, there's a lot more space and freedom.

On the other hand, the same cannot be said about the food and its pricing. Cafeteria food has always been a disappointment, and with the new canteen I thought that finally there might be an improvement. Sadly, the food is just as bland. To make matters worse, pricing has gone up, without the increase of quantity nor quality. I strongly believe that this is one aspect that needs drastic change.

Nutrition is vital for the brain to function properly, this is especially true for teenagers. Without the necessary vitamins, energy levels may drop, making the learning process at school ten times harder. Many of my classmates are skipping meals because they argue that it's too expensive. This lack of nutrition then impacts their grades during class. For this reason, I suggest lowering the prices and increasing the quantity of food.

On a more lighter note, I really dig the atmosphere that surrounds the new canteen. People come here to eat, relax and study. The Cafeteria acts as a great place to hang out and chat with friends. Overall, I really appreciate the newly opened canteen, and ask that you would consider my ideas and suggestions.
