Writing

Gone

The first time I read the book "Gone", I was instantly captivated. I was absolutely astonished at the way this science fiction story lured the reader into its world. I felt all the raw emotions that the characters were feeling, beginning from every joyful moment to sheer hatred and urge for revenge.

The plot of this novel revolves around a town, where all the adults had suddenly vanished, leaving a group of teenagers stranded under an invisible dome. Paranormal activity begins to occur, which amplifies the interest of the story. I personally believe that such an unique novel should be made into a movie, as it demonstrates how to deal with challenges in trials and tribulations.

In my opinion, it is crucial for children to have positive role models. Through the film "Gone", kids would have protagonists to look up to, who embody heroism and courage. Consequently, young people would try to develop these positive attributes, which would in turn make them improve in life.

However, the most vital part of the movie is the cast. It is extremely difficult to find actors, who would perfectly play their book counterparts. This happens to be a major conundrum in a lot of films created from books. Therefore, to solve this issue, the casting director would have to work tirelessly finding suitable actors and actresses.

In conclusion, I firmly believe that this movie would be a masterpiece. Not only would it be fascinating, but it would as well have a very large impact on countless young lives. The screen version of "Gone" would make a phenomenal addition to Hollywood and would go down in history as one of the best films for teenagers.
